June 9-15, 2024 at Georgetown University

SECURITY STUDIES SUMMER INSTITUTE

Apply Today!

Applications due Jan. 31 | css.georgetown.edu/summer-hbcu

SECURITY STUDIES SUMMER INSTITUTE

Fast Facts

- Dates: June 9-15, 2024

- Location: Georgetown University's main campus in Washington, DC

- Eligibility: Current undergraduate students attending HBCUs

Program Goals and Outcomes

The program is intended to help expand the diversity of perspectives and ideas in the national security field by increasing awareness of and access to graduate education and career opportunities in security-related fields for HBCU students. The goal of the institute is to spark interest among HBCU students in broad-ranging security topics such as U.S. national security policy, international security, intelligence, terrorism and substate violence, and technology. Students will walk away from the week with:

- Familiarity with key processes, themes, and players in the security realm

- The ability to think critically about the fundamental issues of security

- Exposure to career and internship opportunities in the DC area

- A new network of peers, academics, and security professionals

Program Details

The week-long institute consists of:

- Presentations and seminars with faculty from Georgetown's Center for Security Studies

- Discussions with professionals working in key private- and public-sector security roles

- Site visits to agencies and organizations in the field of security in Washington, DC

- Group and individual career guidance from the School of Foreign Service Career Center

The program is free to students and includes housing and meals on campus, all travel to and from Washington, DC, and a $600 stipend for the week. While the Institute does not offer academic credit or assign grades, it will appear on a Georgetown transcript as a non-credit course.

Learn More

Read more about past cohorts, student testimonials, and frequently asked questions about the application process at https://css.georgetown.edu/summer-hbcu/

Applications due Jan. 31 | css.georgetown.edu/summer-hbcu