MAJOR to CAREER MAP

How to Use This Map

Use the structure of the map to help you assess where you are and where you would like to go as you prepare for your professional career. The map offers suggestions; you don't have to do it all!

While you will learn a lot from your studies, take time to focus on other things that will help you be more competitive in your job search or graduate school applications. Get relevant experience outside the classroom, build your network, perform service and expand your contributions through leadership, and build the career management skills needed to find a job and move forward in your career.

Plan for Career Success

It is never too early to think about and plan for your future! Take the time to think about the skills you need to develop and experiences you need to have to prepare for your professional career, or move to the next level. Explaining your strengths and experiences with compelling examples will be an important step as you apply for jobs and further education. Use this map as a guide, and see the Career & Professional Development website for additional resources.

Build Skills and Experiences Employers Look For

Employers seek a variety of skills, knowledge and experience when hiring for professional roles. While specific needs vary by industry and employer, recent surveys* indicate the top skills they seek are as follows:

- 1 Strong oral and written communication skills
- 2 Ability to work in diverse teams and collaborate
- 3 Critical thinking, problem solving, and analytical skills
- 4 Professionalism and work ethic

Employers also look for job-specific knowledge, relevant technology skills, and the ability to apply knowledge and skills to real world settings. These are learned through internships, volunteer leadership roles and relevant jobs related to your career interests.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE

THE STUDY OF CRIME PREVENTION, ENFORCEMENT, JUSTICE AND CORRECTIONS

The Criminal Justice degree program contains a comprehensive combination of theoretical and practical courses to prepare students to enter the profession, to advance in the profession if already in it, and/or prepare the individual to pursue a graduate degree. The greatest strength of the Criminal Justice program at Mercy College is the academic and professional diversity of the faculty. The full-time faculty have doctoral degrees in Criminal Justice, Sociology, Psychology, and Law. The program also has a team of dedicated part time faculty from the New York metropolitan area who have hands-on experience in the criminal justice system as attorneys, law enforcement officers, judges, probation and corrections officers, and more. Students in the program will learn in-depth about the theories and practices of the main components of the Criminal Justice System: police, courts, and corrections. In addition, students can select from a variety of courses (offered by Criminal Justice, Psychology, Sociology, and Legal Studies) in areas such as family violence, organized and white-collar crime, ethics, law of evidence, juvenile justice, psychology and law, crime scene investigation, and law of evidence, among others, so they can learn more about areas that are of interest to them. Classroom learning is enhanced by the variety of internship opportunities the program encourages students to pursue. Students completing internships can earn academic credits at a variety of agencies in Westchester, Manhattan, and the Bronx while they practice hands-on learning in the field of their choice.

WHY STUDY CRIMINAL JUSTICE?

A Bachelor of Science degree in Criminal Justice provides the educational background for any individual who wants to work (or is already working) in a variety of public and private fields that make up the vast operations of managing and providing services related to social behavior within a legal context. The field of Criminal Justice is for individuals who want to help others by serving their community in the areas of crime prevention, law enforcement, legal processing of defendants, and in correcting/rehabilitating of offenders for a better society. The field of Criminal Justice offers job stability, among the best health and retirement benefits offered, and plenty of opportunities for advancement. Work in Criminal Justice is exciting, requiring fast thinking and problem solving from one situation to another. The critical and creative thinking of Criminal Justice personnel is always being put to the test: from the Police Officer improvising to de-escalate a confrontation, to the public defender who has to develop the best argument to defend their client, or the rehabilitation worker who must motivate youth away from substance use/abuse. A career in Criminal Justice offers personal and financial benefits, and experiences, that one cannot find in any other field.
