

UNT Student Employee Dress Code

The university expects all employees to dress appropriately for its departments. While common sense is the governing principal, the department head has the final word regarding appropriate dress. Whatever your work setting, you must wear presentable clothing. Clothing that is revealing or inappropriate to the workplace is unacceptable.

Inappropriate dress for student employees may include the following:

- Pants which are below the waistline
- Garments with holes
- Hats
- Shorts
- Off-the-shoulder tops
- Tank tops
- Crop tops
- Halter-tops
- Rumpled/disheveled/wrinkled clothing
- Plastic or rubber "Flip-Flops"
- Pajamas, sweatpants, or other gym clothing,
- Profane or sexually explicit text/imagery.
- Exceptions MAY be made during summer months, check with your supervisor for guidelines

All student employees should check with their supervisor for department specific dress requirements. If you have questions regarding appropriate attire for your area, it is best to dress more conservatively until you have an opportunity to address the issue with your supervisor.
