

FACULTY ENGAGEMENT OPTIONS

As UConn faculty, there are numerous ways you can partner with the Career Center to support career equity in developing students' career readiness.

Become a Career Champion

By enrolling as a Career Champion, you have access to resources and training on career development best practices. The time commitment for the program is flexible.

Incorporate career development into your curriculum

Utilize self-paced, student-facing, customizable Career Development modules or work with our Program Designer, Kaitlyn Anderson, to customize for your course, syllabus, or assignments.

Align Career Competencies

Work with Kaitlyn Anderson to highlight NACE career competencies and career development opportunities with course objectives and class assignments.

Assessing Career Readiness

Invite your students to take the Am I Career Ready? assessment in Focus2 to gauge their current proficiency with career competencies and have them determine if and how they might enhance specific competencies during your course.

Become a mentor in HuskyLink

Sign up as a mentor on HuskyLink and share your insight, advice, and perspective with UConn students and alumni.

Request a classroom presentation from the Career Center

Career Center staff can come to your class and speak to your students on a variety of career development topics. Presentations can be in-person or virtual.

Invite an employer or alum into your classroom

Our team will work with you to match your class with an employer or alum who can share their experiences with students.

HuskyCT Organization Resource

Take advantage of this toolkit to explore sample career syllabi language, assignments aligned with career development or competencies, and other resources.
