NATIONAL CAREER CONFERENCE REIMBURSEMENT STIPEND AWARD FOR JENKINS MBA STUDENTS

Attending a national career conference can be especially beneficial for certain students when it comes to landing a full time job or internship. National career conferences are especially beneficial to MBAs who want to interact with employers who may not visit NC State's campus but will be at one of the career conferences. Additionally, most national career conferences are extraordinary professional development opportunities, networking opportunities and community-building opportunities.

MBA career conferences usually require participants pay a few hundred dollars to register, plus the cost of staying at a hotel, and travel. We recognize that the cost of attending a national career conference maybe an obstacle for some students. In order to open this potentially life-changing opportunity to as many students as possible, NC State's Poole College of Management (PCOM), will make available a national career conference stipend for eligible Jenkins MBA students.

Career Conference Registration Stipend

PCOM will reimburse the registration fee for one national career conference up to $250 for eligible Jenkins MBA students. Travel and incidental costs are the responsibility of the career conference attendee. National career conferences can include, but are not limited to, career fairs such as NBMBAA, Net Impact, Reaching Out, NAWBA, Veterans career fair, and career conferences such as SIG and the Food Expo.

Example: Mary Smith attended the Reaching Out Conference. She was reimbursed for her $150 registration fee. Mary is not eligible to receive a second stipend of $100 since the program allows for reimbursement for one national conference.
